Style for This Century

Interior designer. Antiquarian. Author. Furniture designer. There's nothing Tara Shaw can't do — and here's what she can't do without.

Produced by Margaret Zainey Roux

1

Curve Appeal

One of 70 new pieces in my line for Century, the Pontchartrain dining table is inspired by the interlocking marble designs of the mid-20th century. It emphasizes the structural innovation of the era while blending modern functionality and artistic expression. tarashaw.com

2

A Stitch in Time

I love all kinds of vintage cloth, but especially those with a backstory. In the Congo, weaving Kuba cloth from palm leaf fibers is a generational art that yields bold, versatile textiles. Most often it is woven into long, rectangular strips making it perfect for use as a table runner or bed scarf. bviz.com

3

Take Note

Call me old-fashioned, but when jotting lists and notes I still reach for a pen and paper. A journal lets me track my daily thoughts in one pretty, bound place and allows me the luxury of putting the phone down. scriptura.com

4

Dream Weaver

Rugs made from organic fibers look and feel right in every kind of setting. My favorites are comprised from hand-stitched pieces of jute woven together in the Kasba pattern to form a contemporary patchwork design. katiekochhome.com
